The attendance was large, embracing delegates from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota. The Convention was permanently organized by the election of the Rev. Henry D. Kitchell, of Michigan, as President. A committee was then appointed to report business for the action of the Convention, who subsequently reported a set of resolutions declaring that the tract agency is the most vital means for the promotion of the cause of Christ; that the efforts now making in our country to re-vive the African slave trade demand renewed testimeny from the church against its abominations that evangelical Christianity condemns elayeholding as one of the hignest crimes against God and man; that in view of the refusal of the American Tract Society of New York to apply the Gospel to the sin of slaveholding, the time has come for the reorganization of the system of tract operations, with a view to meet the present emer

Addresses were made by members of the Boston and Cincinnati societies. A strong feeling of opposition to slavery, and also to the action of the American Tract Society on that subject, pervades the whole assembly. The Convention will probably remain in session for some days.

Free Labor in the West Indies-Condition of Jamaica.
TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEW YORK HERALD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7, 1859. ournal, and I have observed with considerable interest rom time to time very important articles and letters in its olumns on the subject of immigration to the West India evil which no amount of productive duty could compen-sate—which has brought Jamaica and other once wealthy and prosperous colonies to the verge of ruin. In trespass this all-important question, I flatter myself I shall receive the countenance of yourself as well as the consideration of your readers.

Where there exists, as in the island of Barbadoes, the essential condition of a sufficiency of effective labor, where the relative position of master and laborer is not reversed, but rightly understood, there is no reason why free labor should not, on mere economical grounds, com-pete successfully with compulsory labor, or in fact sup-plant it.

In Barbadoes, during the most palmy days of slavery, the exports of the island rarely if over exceeded 30,000 tons; they now amount to 45,000 hogsheads, and more. To what are we to attribute the difference between this island and that of Jamaica, possessed as the latter is of so many natural advantages? Simply to an inadequate amount of labor. In Jamaica the servant, in fact, occupies the position of the master, and it is only with the greatest difficulty that labor can be obtained at all. The desideratum for the resuscitation of this colony is in a well advised system of continuous self-supporting lumigration, under judicious guidance and super vision. The evidence on this point is of so positive a character that it is an anomaly indeed that the British government should aggravate the calamities of the planters by an ob-that it is an anomaly indeed that the British government should aggravate the calamities of the planters by an ob-stinate adherence to a bygone policy. I maintain that the great, if not the sole cause, of the island's prostrate condition is the want of labor. It is at island's prostrate condition is the want of labor. It is, at all events, the paramount evil, and until it be removed or mitigated there can be no progressive improvement. On the contrary, matters will become worse and worse. The immense tracts of beautiful, fertile mountain, and other uncultivated waste lands will only offer to the indolent negro congenial retreats to squat, where he can eice out an ignoble career—a career of mental, moral and physical decadence, proving to the world that emancipation has been—as indeed it now is in Jamaica—a signal and disastrous failure.

been—as indeed it now is in Jamaica—a signal and dis-astrous failure.

This year the exports of sugar from Jamaica will not exceed 23,000 hogsheads; in 1838 they were 70,000, and during slavery they amounted to nearly double the latter figure, irrespective of coffee, cocoa, giuger and other sta-ples, then of great importance, but now so insignificant in quantity as to be unworthy of allusion.

Of a cortain class of laborers Jamaica has enough and to spare, and could willingly exchange one-half for a supply of free laborers, less costly, but far more serviceable sub-stitutes.

I will instance a few immigrants supplied by the home government:—

expenditure of this small, insignificant island amounts to £375,000 per annum. On this subject it is unnecessary to waste words.

It is a notice of subtle affairs is a curse with which this unfortunate island is afflicted.

If England really where to crush the slave trade, and eventually to see the slave manumited throughout the world, the most effectual course for her to pursue would be to render timely assistance, by the introduction of a sufficient body of laborers, into her West India colonies. Free labor, where legitimately abundant, is far more productive and remunerative than slave labor. To quote from an article which I recently perused in one of the morning journals, referring to slave labor in the South, the writer says.—

"Nothing but our almost perfect monopoly in the production of the most important staple of the world's commerce has enabled us to pay such intolerable prices for labor. The average value of the slave is a little over $1,000—say a capital representing an interest of $80 a year or $7 a month. The cost of alave labor is then equivalent to hired, providing for food, clothing, little luxuries, medical attendance, &c., and still leaving a clear saving of $7 a month. Is there any country of the world where unskilled white labor is so highly paid?"

But really, sir, Mr. Everett thoroughly grasped the question of the slave trade in his letter, dated Washington, becember 1, 1832, to Mr. Crampton, the British Minister. He wrote to him as follows:—

"I will but allude to an evil of the first magnitude. I mean the African slave trade, in the suppression of which England and France take a lively interest—an evil which still forms a great repreach upon the civilization of Christendom, and perpetuates the barbarism of Africa; but for which, it is to be feared, there is no hope of a complete remody soile Cobe remokes a Spanish colony."

The pith of the extract I have italicised. NEMO.
